

Krishna's magic flute in the Holy Melbourne Concert 2010

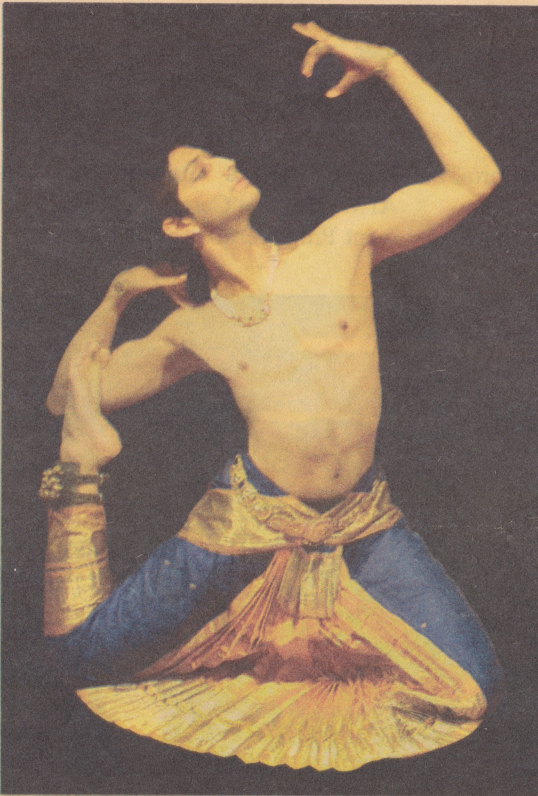

The Holy Melbourne Concert 2010 will be held on Sunday the 28th November 8.00 pm, at Melbourne Town Hall. The concert presents the traditional sacred music of 5 faith communities. The traditional sacred music of Hinduism will be performed by Sridhar Chari, flute player, Anita Das, violinist and Venkat Ramakrishnan, mridangam player.

They will play the traditional Marathi song : Brindavani Venu, while a Barathanatyam dance will be performed by Govind Pallai, evoking the magic character, the spiritual, entrancing beauty of Krishna's flute: how the mere sound of that flute would cause all the animals, all the trees, all of nature and all humans to freeze in absolute awe at the spiritual depth of his melody. They would be tranquilised, captured, immersed, perhaps in a trance?

The song ends in a crescendo where the dancer himself goes into a mesmerising spiritual trance, representing how music (i.e

Krishna's flute) is capable of taking us to a transcendental place, a third dimension. This is a spiritually powerful piece, and musically very appealing.

The Holy Melbourne Concerts are produced by Marta Balan, of the Harmony Foundation of Victoria Inc. and the Musical Director is Navid Akrami. This will be the 10th Holy Melbourne Concert, which also enjoys the support of the Premier of Victoria The Honourable John Brumby.

Admission: $10 recommended donation.

Web site: www.holymelbourne.com